A year of transformation

And within the generally depressed retailing market other themes continued to emerge with consumer confidence at an all-time low and the cost of living having a severe impact on consumers’ ability to spend. Shopping continues to move from high streets to out-of-town retail parks, which offer free parking and a strong recreational experience to shoppers. Shopping also continues to move online, with both internet and mobile retailing growing at pace.

During the year, 54 household names went into administration, including Peacocks, Comet, Clintons and JJB Sports, affecting 3,951 stores and 48,000 employees. And at the same time many other retailers remain fragile.

It would be crazy to suggest that we weren’t negatively impacted by all of this. We were – that’s the environment in which we trade.

The good news is that we continue to trade and we do so solidly with respectable sales, a loyal customer and supplier base, controlled costs, and a strong balance sheet. We also continue to deliver profit, and dividend, to our shareholders. Oh and on top of all of that, we are still investing heavily in the future of our business and delivering on most (if not all) of our strategic objectives for 2012/13.

Our vision for 2012/13 was a strong one: to deliver extraordinary shopping in the heart of the community. This year has seen us take decent steps forward in our pursuit of this.

Passionate about product

We told you last year that product is at the heart and soul of what we do – it’s the lifeblood of our business.

As we audit our products, we work on:

• Range – making sure we include all the products our customers want from us
• Brands – making sure that all the brands our customers expect us to have are there
• Price – it just wouldn’t be Wilko if it wasn’t an everyday good deal for our customers
• Promotions – we like to throw in some eye-watering deals just for excitement
• The three tiers of Own Label – Wilkinson (our very best), Wilko (the heart and soul of what we do) and Wilko Functional (our entry level price fighting product). We work hard to ensure that each offers the range, quality and price proposition that’s right to the role it fulfils for our customers.

A tough but rewarding year

It’s been a tough year for UK retailing and in particular, for shops on the UK high street, with sales being quoted as down by 1.9% in 2012 versus 2011.

2013 is going to be just as challenging as 2012 for high street retailers. It’s essential that we continue to pull together to deliver extraordinary shopping in the heart of the community.

Executive Business Review

Our financial report

Contents
• Quality – this work is ongoing whether during a review or not, we’re always working tirelessly to improve product quality for our customers at a price they can afford.

• Trend – we know that to many customers being bang on trend, coordinated and able to ‘get the look for less’ is incredibly important. This was the first year that we’ve integrated trend fully across our range and it really comes to life in Garden, Home, Kitchen and Stationery. We’re proud of what we’ve achieved so far, but watch this space for more to come.

• Our product adjacencies and display techniques – in the past we may not have won many prizes for trend or visual merchandising. Even an 80+ year old business has things to learn and we like to think we’re learning this - fast. We have great products at great prices, but sometimes our customers don’t see everything we have to offer because we don’t get the adjacencies or displays right. This is something we’ve been working really hard to get right and will continue to do so into 2013/14.

Shop with us anytime, any place, anywhere
We continue to expand our retail offer to our customers. There were many highlights in 2012/13...

New stores
We opened an additional seven stores in 2012/13 – these were Bicester, Devizes, Washington, Falmouth, Crawley, Penarth and Edmonton Green.

Closures
Regrettably though we closed our store in Beeston Crawley, Pwllheli and Edmonton Green.

Trial stores
As part of our ongoing in-store experience development programme we trialled new customer experiences in Crawley, Edmonton Green and Pwllheli. These were our first stores to have the name Wilko above the door and a new format representing two thirds of our estate overall.

We opened an additional seven stores in 2012/13 – these were Bicester, Devizes, Washington, Falmouth, Crawley, Penarth and Edmonton Green.

Throughout 2012/13 dedicated teams have worked tirelessly on our SAP implementation project. The ‘buy it’ phase of which is due to land in 2013 with further phases to follow. SAP implementation is costly, complicated and time consuming and in our case will take a number of years and a number of phases to complete. But getting it right is critical to delivering a strong customer experience moving forwards. And we will be getting it right.

Maybe it’s time to talk
We’re on our way and the journey won’t be changing for us for a little while. We’re doing loads and it’s keeping us busy. It’s sote to say we’re a business in transition and we’re grateful to our customers, team members, suppliers and shareholders for sticking with us through the rough and the smooth of a bumpy transition process and not in the calmest of climates either.

And perhaps it’s guilty of neglecting doing one thing along the way it’s this – making enough time to talk to all our stakeholders and fill them in on where we’re going. So as part of our big plans for 2013/14 and 2014/15, we’re starting to plan how we talk to people, including people outside Wilko.

And the Thanks
It wouldn’t be Wilko if we didn’t say thanks to our companions on the journey. A heartfelt thank you to our customers, shareholders, Board, EMT, senior leadership team, team members, suppliers and advisors. We continue to appreciate and value your unswerving and loyal support.

In 2013/14 we’ll be triening this work with a second round of trials.

More ways to shop
We also continue to improve our ‘more ways to shop’ opportunities for our customers:

• We introduced click & collect across the entire estate. Orders from our full range in any store or from home and have your order delivered to the Wilko store of your choice for collection at a time suitable to you.

• We’re utilising a fulfilment centre, Clipper, to ensure that click & collect works smoothly for our customers.

• We introduced Wilko mobile shopping for the first time and we now have 162,000 customers using our mobile site every week.

• We continue to make improvements to our online offer:
  - We revamped it.wilko.com
  - We continue to add breadth of range, with total online listings now standing at over 22,000.
  - Having listened to our customers, we improved the shopability of our site and we will continue to do so next year.
  - We improved our site experientially – and there’s more to do on this too.

• We produced 4.2m catalogues during the year.

• We continued to revamp our existing estate with a price they can afford.

We’re utilising a fulfilment centre, Clipper, to ensure that click & collect works smoothly for our customers.

So you really can shop with Wilko anytime, any place, anywhere.

Amy Curtis, Managing Editor, Good Homes

“Lots of fab products, very on trend and a good deal of research into the quality.”
Laurie Davidson, Deputy Chief Sub-Editor and Writer, 25 Beautiful Homes

Providing our customers with excellent quality and choice is just as important to us as providing them with outstanding value for money. That’s why we’ve reviewed our ranges to ensure that we’re always bringing our customers the best possible products at the best prices, both in store and online.

Wilkinson has always provided outstanding value for the whole family, but as money becomes tighter on the high street, our mission is to make sure that our vision to deliver extraordinary everyday shopping in the heart of the community is achieved. So, over the last year we’ve taken big steps to make sure we’re also the home of choice and quality too. All the heart of this work has been reviewing our product ranges on Garden, Stationery, Kitchen and Christmas over the last year.

Plus, we’re preparing for two more in 2013: Home and Household Cleaning. These are helping the way our stores look and the products we sell to deliver great quality, on-trend products to our customers.
Focusing in on product

We’ve looked at the quality of every product within the reviews and delivered thousands of quality improvements for our customers, covering numerous product areas, from Christmas decorations to microwaves and A4 notepads.

We’ve added more than 5,000 new products as a result of reviewing our ranges over the last 12 months.

Our press shows and launches have been enthusing journalists about our brand and new products. The Garden and Home show and the Christmas show were very well received and we also started national press advertising before Christmas for the first time.

After scouring the world, we identified seven new trends that are helping us to source and develop innovative products for all categories in 2013.

278 PIECES OF COVERAGE ACHIEVED, THE BEST YET!

“I spent more time admiring the Wilko Christmas show than any other this year.”
Editor, Ideal Home

There were some real highlights in terms of sales growth. Greetings cards, kids’ stationery and our small domestic appliances all saw positive growth, with improved quality and on-trend colours and designs.

We saw positive product share growth in every category that we reviewed last year.

“A review of our current product ranges takes months of planning, customer research, making sure they’re bang on trend.”
Frankie Adams, Head of Buying

We’re preparing even more product range reviews in 2013 – Home and Household Cleaning – again bringing thousands of great new products to our customers.

“Reviewing our ranges enables us to combine several improvements into one big change – and bring that change to our customers in a very systematic, organised way.”
Frankie Adams, Head of Buying
Wilkinson is all about extraordinary everyday shopping in the heart of the community. With our carefully tailored Own Label product ranges, spanning not one but three price brackets, we’re catering for every taste and purse.

Our everyday value range allows us to compete more effectively on the high street – catering for every taste and purse.

Wilko Own Label

Ours participation of Wilko mid-tier range has seen steady positive growth throughout 2012.

Premium range

Our Premium range has grown from 80 to 130 products, all of which offer the very best quality at competitive prices. Early feedback suggests our customers love the quality!

Our everyday value product range is aimed at customers on a budget as well as savvy shoppers, and gives them great value at equally great prices.

Wilko Own Label

We’ve put a lot of effort into improving the 10,000 products in our mid-tier Own Label range, focusing on trends and constantly introducing exciting and great looking new products.

Premium range

We benchmark the quality of all our premium products against the best on the high street and offer longer guarantees on many of them. But don’t expect higher prices – our premium range still offers savings of up to 50% on our major competitors.

“Customers like our everyday value range because of the great value for money they get. If you’re not an enthusiastic gardener you would probably buy an everyday value spade, whereas a more serious gardener can find something at a higher price and greater quality in our Wilko range.”

Adam Lambert, Own Label Controller
Greenfingers at the ready

In February last year we landed our new garden ranges in store.

With unit sales in excess of 650,000 our slug treatments enjoyed great sales.

650,000

Our decorative planters changed substantially from previous years with new designs and colours resulting in a positive sales growth for the range.

Our offer was presented with clear ‘good, better, best’ range and pricing details. Unique designs and colour themes were in line with trend and consistent across drinkware, tableware and accessories, enabling our customers to get a completely coordinated look.

Going in the write direction

Our launch of a new stationery range in July was certainly something to write home about.

Since the relaunch of Stationery, we’ve sold 5.5 million single greetings cards from our new range. We’re proud of our new designs and improved quality.

“Improved quality and a broader range in stationery greeting cards has made them a real ‘hero’ product.”
Frankie Adams, Head of Buying

50,000

The new Wilko Own Label copier paper is thicker and whiter. Since the relaunch, we’ve sold 500,000 packs, or to put it another way, 250 million sheets of paper.

We changed 50% of the products in Kitchen and launched 900 Own Label products.

One of the best-selling products has been the mechanical scales, with over 10,000 units sold in black and cream alone.

After months of preparation, we finally hit stores in August with an all-new and improved Kitchen offer. Here’s a taste of the highlights.

10,000

We’ve seen positive growth in our small domestic appliance ranges since reviewing our Kitchen range.

“‘We’re at the stage now where we’re looking at extending the Premium range, particularly in bakeware.’”

Gavin White, Wilkinson Premium Brand Manager

Our best Christmas ever!

We put together a Christmas trend book that showed exactly how a range should look, and our product development team used this to help buyers source on-trend ranges.

Our real success during Christmas 2012 was the level of newness and innovation in the range. Of our top 10 performing lines, six were new products.

One of our best-selling trees was the Wilkinson 6 foot tree.

Our new wooden toy instrument range was a real hit at Christmas.

Our real success during Christmas 2012 was the level of newness and innovation in the range. Of our top 10 performing lines, six were new products.

Our 2m wrapping paper was very successful, but two kids’ varieties were loved by our customers, as the designs were on trend and the thickness of the paper was improved.

For the first time Wilkinson staged a Christmas press show to showcase its seasonal range. Some 119 journalists from 79 national media titles attended with 60 one-to-one appointments taking place between our trends team and key titles, such as Good Housekeeping, Prima and Ideal Home. The feedback was 100% positive.

With the UK market value of Halloween growing twice as fast as in the US, we were determined to make this our very best Halloween yet. So to raise Halloween’s profile among our customers, we arranged direct email drops each week and in-store flyers to highlight offers. We also featured Halloween in our catalogue and press show.

A happy Halloween

Maude
Granny
Boo

In 2012, we really stepped up our game and featured more than 300 Halloween products online. That’s the biggest range we’ve put together in the history of Halloween at Wilkinson – and it really helped to support our multichannel offer.

Our Halloween range included 43 costumes for kids, 15 for adults and a further 127 lines available online – a staggering 185 in total!

More than 50% of our entire Halloween range was brand new. We also engaged with team members and customers with ‘How-to guides’ – like carve your own pumpkin.

We improved value across our range, with 74% of products under £5.

We’ve improved the quality of our packaging and artwork – all costumes now come in resealable packs to make it easy for customers to touch and feel them in store.

No tricks, just treats

Our team members volunteered to get dressed up and pose for all our Halloween packaging photography. The McEerie family were instrumental in all our advertising, not only to help promote Halloween, but to successfully bring together our entire offering.

We’ve improved the quality of our packaging and artwork – all costumes now come in resealable packs to make it easy for customers to touch and feel them in store.
Bringing product and people together

As well as investing in our products, we’re investing in our people, providing them with the skills and knowledge to give customers a memorable experience in store.

What customers feel about us is strongly influenced by their experience of shopping in our stores. So, for the retail team, customer service has always been a top priority – a way of setting us apart from the competition and encouraging customers to return time and again.

Training to be the best
We’ve used the various product range reviews as an opportunity to deliver bespoke training to all our team members, so they can deliver excellent customer service and share their knowledge on the products and trends we sell.

With more than 5,000 new products to contend with, we wanted to help them spot opportunities and go that extra mile for customers, like helping elderly customers to their car with their shopping or sourcing out of stock products online. It’s things like this that make our customer service truly unique.

From this training we’ve already seen increased customer satisfaction scores in our stores!

“Investment in our team members is absolutely key to ensuring that we improve the customer experience.”
Robin Lassiter, Head of Retail

“Crawley shows off the very best of Wilko”
Fiona Gunn, Head of Marketing
Attracting the best people and developing their skills is key to our future success. We continue to extend our development programmes to make sure all our people fulfil their potential and are ready to lead the business in the future.

Focusing on talent
Since 2011 we’ve added the foundation level to our internal talent development programme, Aspire. The foundation is designed to identify rising stars capable of meeting the short and long-term needs of the business and give them all the help they need to achieve their very best. Already 48 team members have taken part in the foundation level of the programme and are now applying their new skills across the business.

Focusing on leadership
Another first for Wilkinson is our Extraordinary Leader Programme, which is aimed primarily at executive and managerial team members. It focuses on developing leadership potential and performance management skills, as well as focusing on how we live our values and creating a culture of safety.

Focusing on the future
Recruitment at Wilkinson has remained fairly constant, but we’ve invested in some parts of the business, including both ICT and Own Label.

Wilkinson is an important employer in the communities in which we operate. Our people reflect our customers and we take our responsibilities to a diverse workforce seriously. However, in line with the tough current economic conditions, we’ve had to reshape our business during the year to ensure we’re in good shape for 2013 and beyond.

Our people understand the need for tough business decisions and this was illustrated by our engagement survey late in 2012. Despite a tough year our engagement index increased to 76% (up 1%). The excellent response rate of 96% (up 3%) is further evidence of our engaged workforce. In a major review of our pensions arrangements in March 2013 we began driving membership of our Group Personal Pension Scheme and introduced auto-enrolment.

“Everyone comes out of the Aspire programme slightly shaken, but having enjoyed the experience. They find it a personal challenge that helps develop them as individuals.”

Richard Clague, Head of HR
Our stores

Maintaining ‘business as usual’ at store level, while managing the immense changes of the last year has been the task of the property team.

2012 was our third year in the ‘One Touch’ store rebrand, and our Property team completed 27 stores, bringing the total rebrand to two thirds of our estate.

However, after re-evaluating our brand and space model, we made a decision to put the project on hold and concentrate instead on our new concept store in Crawley.

Rebranded stores saw a positive sales growth and we’re committed to developing Crawley and have since refined the concept for our stores in Edmonton Green and Castleford. We’ll then consider rolling it out further.

Crawley, lower shelving, better lighting and additional wall signage with plenty of personality to encourage customers to shop the whole store. Customer feedback has been excellent.

Wilkinson has

Of 21,774 team members, nearly 20,000 work in retail.

“The new visual merchandising approach is very informal, chatty and engages our customers. It’s quirky, humorous, different, has lots of personality and is distinctively Wilko.”

Ian Cutts, Head of Property

Wilkinson has nearly 6.5 million square feet of retail space.

2012 saw us open 7 new stores and rebrand 27 of our existing stores.

The right product in the right place

We’ve gone far to create a world-class supply chain, providing a quicker, more responsive and safer service for retail that supports our ambitions for the future.

The supply chain is a vital component of any retail business – even more so when you have thousands of products, many being made and shipped from halfway around the world.

We’ve spent time learning from the best examples of supply chain management worldwide. The exercise showed that while much of what we were already doing was best practice, there was more we could do to improve our efficiency, speed, costs and, most importantly, the safety of our team members.

We began 2012 by focusing on the basics, identifying clear models of how we flow stock, creating a clear business structure and introducing accountability and standard methods of working from a health and safety perspective.

Supply chain now takes a more end-to-end approach – we ask where is the right place to source products? What are the costs of moving the product? And what are the implications of sourcing product from different parts of the world? This helps to make sure we maximise the availability for our customers while minimising our costs to deliver great, quality products on time to our stores.

A detailed analysis of costs associated with every single task in our distribution centre is enabling us to introduce further efficiencies. Triton will play an important role in taking this further when it goes live from August 2013.

Reducing travel to source products

3.6 MILLION

We’ve achieved our mileage reduction target of 3.6 million, despite opening over 100 stores since 2006.

We’re working with a third party – Clipper – to distribute product much more efficiently, cutting the number of lorry journeys and distance travelled, and reducing our carbon footprint.

A rigorous quality inspection process is handled by a dedicated third party team, which makes sure that what we’re shipping is in line with our expectations and worthy of being our Own Label.

The Home category now includes a lot of product from India, which is very strong in design and innovation – and offers a huge range of textiles.”

Rajnish Kapur, Managing Director – Wilko Asia

Going for growth

The past year has seen Wilko Asia go from strength to strength.

Not only has the Hong Kong-based team expanded to 65 team members, including UK team members relocating to create a truly integrated team, but it’s also set to expand its horizons.

It will enable us to manage product quality, the supply chain and expectations, as well as develop some long-lasting partnerships with trusted, local suppliers.

Triton will be the biggest change Wilkinson has ever undertaken and will create a sustainable platform for our growth over the next 20 years.

We’ll be engaging with more than 700 team members to train them on the changes the Triton programme will bring to our business.

Triton training consists of 78 modules condensed into 54 workshops.

“Triton will underpin everything we do and how we do it – how we buy, move and ultimately sell our products”

Shaun Gunn, Program Manager for Triton

By joining all our systems, processes and procedures, Triton will free our team members to focus on what’s really important – our customers.

More than ever before retailers depend on data – about suppliers, shipping, stock control, product sales and more. In fact, data is the backbone of Wilkinson. Even so, in the past it’s been generated by lots of different systems, not all of which have been comparable.

So, from this year, we’re introducing a cutting-edge business management system, SAP, to give us more accurate and consistent data. It’ll streamline how we input data, saving time and effort, and will also improve our efficiency. Triton will underpin everything we do and how we do it – how we buy, move and ultimately sell our products.
Customers have said they want convenience, so we’ve invested in a multichannel approach – a key part of our sustainable offer for the future.

Modern retail is changing. More and more customers are purchasing online as they look for convenience as well as value. So we’ve made some big changes in response – by making more of our products available online, by launching a fully operational mobile transaction site and by launching a product ratings and review option on the website.

We’ve also moved our online and fulfilment delivery operation to a third party provider – Clipper – with immediate benefits in customer service and speed of delivery.

We’ve made some real improvements to our multichannel offer in the last year. We’ve added more products to the site, trialled new in-store concepts, reduced the cost of delivery to its lowest ever level and we’ve introduced next day delivery options.

With 5% of all our customers visiting our website before shopping in our stores and part of our plan to become a truly multichannel retailer, we’ve also given our website a major facelift and taken the opportunity to change our online name to wilko.com.

The new brand is in line with what many customers already know us as – Wilko. It also represents the modernisation of our brand – the next step into the future.

Early indications from the launch of the improved wilko.com site have been positive.

“Our customers are shopping in a different way now. Many use online to research their shop purchase. We have a great opportunity to use the website to acquire new customers and drive footfall to stores.”
Simon Hathway, Head of Multichannel
Wilkinson donated an additional £300,000 supporting local charities and community groups in need of support.

Our Annual Engagement Survey showed an increase of 7% when our team members were asked ‘do we make a difference to our local communities?’ This was the highest increase in the survey in 2012!

Ross Davenport
competed in the 200m freestyle relay in the 2012 Olympics, Ross and the team came sixth overall.

Louisa Dukes
played handball at London 2012 Olympics and has given a new lease of life to the sport.

Our team members volunteered over 5,000 hours of time to their nominated local charities.

Clare Jones, Charity Officer

“Not only was a huge sum raised, but it also really engaged team members and made the community live and breathe in our stores.”

Our decision last year to support 29 local charities instead of one national charity was a bold new strategy – and one that’s paid dividends. Team members in each region nominated local charities they were passionate about or had a connection with, and ended up doubling the amount of funds they raised in 2011.

Charity begins at home

Being at the heart of the community is really important to us and we like to give something back where we can. That goes for our team members too. They are hugely generous at both store and individual levels and very supportive of causes in their local area.

Annual Report 2012

Our financial position remains strong with a net cash year we introduced a mobile channel which now being made within our proposition to become truly website under wilko.com and further progress is 2013 will also see the introduction of a new-look delivery promises to customers are always met.

of a dedicated supply centre to ensure that our improvements in this area should accelerate well, but is behind our expectations. However, there is future scope to reduce our cost base further of retail, supply chain and support. We still believe in 2013. Our internet business continues to perform there is future scope to reduce our cost base further.

Our Majors Category Review programme will ensure that the quality and range of our products continues to improve whilst we maintain our care value of providing extraordinary everyday shopping in the heart of the community. During the year we launched our new Stationary and Kitchen ranges along with a completely new look for Christmas 2012. This year’s new Garden ranges have landed well and our biggest major category launch yet. Home, was launched in March 2013 with its implementation incorporating all the lessons we had learnt from the earlier Majors Category Review launches, was the most sea range change that incorporated all the outcomes from the trend work that we have done over the last 18 months to make sure that our customers are benefiting from truly up-to-date products and designs at great value. We are pleased with the quality and range of our 2012 category reviews and we need to ensure that we reap the benefits from these new ranges over the coming months and years and ensure that the ranges remain refreshed and relevant to the customer. We have also continued with our significant investment in our business processes and technology to improve the way we support the business, we are unscrambling the data and releasing phase this in throughout September and October.

Our property and retail teams continued to open new stores in seven locations during 2012 and delivered an extra 223 weeks of trading. These new stores were located across the country and included the opening of our stores in Cramlington, Southam, Green and Pewleydene, in which we trialled our new look concept stores which we are currently planning to take into two existing stores during the first half of 2013/14. Reluctantly, we decided to slow down and then halt our one-touch rebadging and refurbishment programme so that as we move forward we can incorporate the learning from these trialled concept stores. Also, during the year we had to close our Leiston store following a compulsory purchase order to allow the extension of the new Ipswich Train Station.

We continued our planned reduction in costs with further rollout of our warehouse on wheels initiative, and our supply chain and retail team members have continued to drive out costs from our business to maximise their contribution to our profit or sales decline. Our team in Hong Kong has continued to strengthen our supply base in Asia and prove to be an invaluable component in the Major Category Review process. As ever, health and safety is a key concern for our business and this year saw the rollout of our new awareness campaigns which featured 'Pavel', a young child getting up to mischief in the work environment with the theme being if your child was doing this, would you just let it pass without saying something?

All our stores have embraced our 2012/13 charity programme, which enables them to play an active role in their local community. The decision this year to allow each region, the distribution centres and head office to choose their own local charity to support, rather than run with a national charity, has been extremely successful. As I write this report the total raised is standing at £1.5m against our target of £3.5m with our charity year ending in May 2013. In addition our team members have provided direct and indirect support to a number of these chosen charities through volunteering across a range of activities from gardening at a hospice to redecorating sheltered housing (with the odd ‘leg waxing’ thrown in too).

Our Extraordinary Leader Training Programme was rolled out across the business during the year. We introduced an additional programme explaining how we should live our values as a leader and team member, apply them to the challenge of leading performance and creating a focused safety culture. Our internal talent development programme, Aspire, and our new foundation level development programme continue to develop our talent pool. We have retained our Investors In People status for the 16th consecutive year and have achieved, yet again, a gold standard award.

Stuart Mitchell left the business in July 2012 and our thanks go to him for his clear leadership during his 6 years with the company. He oversaw a period of change in our history as we expanded from 273 to 369 stores, the start of our multichannel activity, the rebranding of our estate programme, the formulation of our Major Category Reviews, numerous efficiency initiatives across the business and the opening of the office and supply chain function in Hong Kong.

Robin Terrell joined as a Non-Executive Director in 2012 but sadly left us in February 2013 to take up a new executive position at Tesco. He made a significant contribution to both the multichannel aspects of our business and the core estate in the short time he was on board. These have been no further changes to the executive management team during the year.

2012 has been another challenging year in which we business was hard to race some or our decisions, but significant achievements have been made. As always our progress would not have been possible without the hard work and commitment of our 23,000 team members, suppliers and family shareholders.
